

Creative Custom Minicar

Posted by OldInjun - 2017/08/22 16:22

Once in awhile I am blown away by the creativity of some custom car fabricators. I ran across this on MSN.com and felt compelled to share:

http://www.pontiac2plus2registry.com/images/fbfiles/images/Ewoc__1.jpg

http://www.pontiac2plus2registry.com/images/fbfiles/images/Ewoc__2.jpg

http://www.pontiac2plus2registry.com/images/fbfiles/images/Ewoc__3.jpg

According to MSN, "The owner-built Ewoc might be our best of show and looks like something welded together by some evil-genius kid in auto shop. The body is two fenders from a 1946 Plymouth welded together and powered by a bicycle engine hooked up to a 12-volt battery.

The grille, turn signals, console switches and brake lights are from a 1969 Jaguar XJ6. Its wheels are off a wheelbarrow and a hand truck. The chassis is a part of a massage table and the seat is from a kindergarten classroom. Also comes complete with press-to-operate headlights and tillers for steering. What an awesome little monster!"

A real work of automotive art in a tiny package!

=====