Has anyone tried these, or do you have an opinion on whether they would work in a '60's Pontiac?

I need a solution to the

"can't-roll-down-the-passenger-side-window-'cause-it's-too-damned-far-away-especially-at-75-mph" problem. This set up looks as if it might work. I could hide the switches to retain the stock look, just need to figure how to camouflage the wires running into the doors.
